However, a deep spiritual calling led him to pursue a different path. In 1950, he was ordained as a Catholic priest, becoming known as the "Wyoming Padre." He ministered to the remote communities of Wyoming, bringing solace and spiritual guidance to ranchers, cowboys, and Native Americans alike.

A Pioneer in Interfaith Relations

Father Seis was a true pioneer in interfaith relations. He forged strong bonds with Native American tribes, participating in their ceremonies and advocating for their rights.

He also worked closely with Protestant churches, recognizing the importance of ecumenical dialogue and cooperation. His efforts helped to bridge divides and foster a spirit of unity in the diverse religious landscape of Wyoming.

A Champion of Education and Social Justice

Beyond his priestly duties, Father Seis was a tireless advocate for education and social justice. He founded the Saint Francis Mission School in Wounded Knee, South Dakota, providing educational opportunities to Native American youth.

He also spoke out against poverty, discrimination, and the Vietnam War, challenging the status quo and advocating for a more just and equitable society.

A Legacy of Service and Inspiration

Father Seis's life and work left an enduring legacy in Wyoming and beyond. He was a beloved pastor, a respected bridge-builder, and a champion of the marginalized.

In 2015, he was posthumously inducted into the Wyoming Cowboy Hall of Fame, a testament to his profound impact on the state's heritage. His story continues to inspire generations of Wyomingites, reminding them of the transformative power of faith, service, and compassion.
