2. Past Continuous Tense

The past continuous tense, also referred to as the past progressive, depicts ongoing actions or events that were in progress at a specific time in the past. It is formed by combining the past tense of the verb "to be" (was/were) with the present participle (verb + -ing).

Example: - I was studying for my exam when the phone rang. - They were playing soccer in the park all afternoon.

3. Past Perfect Tense

The past perfect tense, also known as the pluperfect, expresses actions or events that occurred before another past action or event. It is formed by combining the past tense of the verb "to have" (had) with the past participle of the main verb.
