As a young girl, she witnessed the tragic death of her mother, a loss that has left an unfillable void in her life. Now, as an adult, Laura is struggling to find her place in the world. She works at a dead-end job, has few friends, and is estranged from her father.

One day, Laura meets Jake, a kind and gentle man who seems to understand her pain. They fall in love, and for a brief time, Laura feels like she has finally found happiness. But their relationship is tested when Jake is diagnosed with a terminal illness. Laura is forced to confront her own mortality and the inevitability of loss.

As Jake's health declines, Laura finds herself drawn to the local Catholic church. She begins to attend Mass and finds solace in the community of faith. Through her newfound faith, Laura learns to forgive herself and others. She also learns to accept the pain of loss and to find hope in the midst of despair.
