Jenkins's journey begins in the bustling city of Alice Springs, the gateway to the Outback. From there, he ventures into the remote and rugged

MacDonnell Ranges, where ancient rock formations rise from the desert like ancient sentinels. As he treks deeper into the Outback, he encounters the iconic Uluru (Ayers Rock), a massive sandstone monolith that has become a symbol of Australia.

Continuing westward, Jenkins travels through the Simpson Desert, one of the largest and most inhospitable deserts in the world. Here, he witnesses the harsh beauty of the landscape, as well as the resilience of the plants and animals that call it home. He also meets with Aboriginal elders, who share their ancient knowledge and traditions with him.
